SPORTS DEHYDRATION SAFETY TIPS

Everything you need to know to keep your kids safe from dehydration when playing sports.

Drink Enough Water!

Encourage athletes to drink the right amount of water. The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) recommends:

- 5 oz. for a 88-pound child every 20 minutes
- 9 oz. for a 132-pound adolescent every 20 minutes

Kids will know if they are drinking enough water if their urine is clear or the color of lemonade

To keep kids in top shape for sports, it's important for them to stay hydrated by drinking plenty of fluids. Dehydration occurs when a body loses more water than it takes in (such as through sweating). When kids don't drink enough water while playing sports, they could be at risk for dehydration, heat exhaustion or even heatstroke.

Bring a Water Bottle and Take Regular Breaks

- Make sure athletes have a water bottle for every practice and game.
- Make sure athletes drink fluids (water is the best option) 30 minutes before the activity begins and every 15-20 minutes during activity. Drinking water after play is equally important.
- Establish mandatory water breaks throughout practices and games—don't wait for a child to tell you he or she is thirsty. Encourage children to stay well hydrated by drinking plenty of water before, during and after play.

Know the Signs and Symptoms of Dehydration

- The severity of dehydration can vary from mild to more life threatening if left unchecked. There are three levels of dehydration: heat cramps, heat exhaustion and heatstroke.
- Symptoms can range from muscle cramping in the calves, back, arms or abdomen (heat cramps) to faintness or dizziness, nausea and rapid heartbeat (heat exhaustion) to collapse, emotional instability and very high body temperature (heatstroke).

Respond Appropriately to the Signs of Heat Illness

- If an athlete is dehydrated or suffering from heat exhaustion, call 911 if his or her condition doesn't improve or worsens. If you suspect heatstroke call 911 immediately and make every effort to cool the athlete.
- Move athlete to shade and cool the body with cold water. Have the athlete drink cool water, remove any equipment and excess clothing and lie down, raising his or her legs about 8-12 inches.
- Make sure the athlete gets checked out by a doctor or medical personnel and is cleared before returning to play.
- Treat heatstroke victims right away by immersing them in cold water before the ambulance arrives. If immersion is not an option, soak the child with cold water from a shower, hose or soaking towel.

While at play, children generate more heat than adults, but also sweat less, which makes them more susceptible to dehydration. It is estimated that more than 9,000 high school athletes are treated for heat illness each year in the United States.

SPORTS SAFETY TIPS

Everything you need to know to keep your kids safe while playing sports.

Participation in sports offers tremendous social, emotional and physical benefits for children. We know that one of the worst things for kids is being on the sidelines with an injury. As Parents and Coaches, there are simple things we can do to help reduce preventable injuries—so our kids can continue playing the games they love.

Be a Prepared Coach

- As a coach, establish safety guidelines that athletes and parents can follow during every practice and game, such as creating hydration breaks, encouraging players to sit out if injured, resting if not feeling well and facilitating a proper warm up.

Don't Forget to Warm Up and Stretch Before Games and Practices

- Make sure time is set aside before every practice and game for athletes to warm up properly.
- Stretching before practice and games can release muscle tension and help prevent sports-related injuries, such as muscle tears and sprains.
- Kids should start with about 10 minutes of jogging or any light activity, then stretch all major muscle groups, holding each stretch for 20 to 30 seconds. This increases circulation to cold muscles, improves flexibility and makes muscles less prone to strain or tear.

Make Rest a Priority

- To help avoid overuse injury, rest all players during practices and games.
- Encourage players to communicate any pain, injury or illness they may have during or after any practices or games. Make sure they know it's smart to tell coaches and parents if they are hurt or not feeling well.
- Kids should have at least one to two days off from any particular sport each week.
- Take time off from one sport to prevent overuse injuries. It is important to get stronger and develop skills learned in another sport.
- Encourage kids to play a variety of sports to help balance muscle development and prevent mental fatigue, otherwise known as "burnout".

Wear Appropriate Sports Gear

- Having kids wear the appropriate and properly-fitted sports gear during practice and games can help avoid minor and severe injuries.
- Make sure athletes have the right equipment and are wearing it for both practice and games. The right equipment may include helmets, shin guards, mouth guards, ankle braces, shoes with rubber cleats and sunscreen.

Don't Take Chances with the Brain

- Learn the signs and symptoms of a concussion. This information is important for coaches, parents and athletes.
- A player with a suspected concussion must be immediately sidelined until evaluated and released by a medical professional. The important thing is to protect players who have had a concussion from having another one.
- A good rule of thumb; WHEN IN DOUBT, SIT THEM OUT.

BRAIN INJURY IN SPORTS

Features of Concussion Frequently Observed:

1. Vacant Stare
(befuddled facial expression)
2. Delayed verbal and motor responses
(slow to answer questions or follow instructions)
3. Confusion and inability to focus attention
(easily distracted and unable to follow through with normal activities)
4. Disorientation
(walking in the wrong direction; unaware of time, date and place)
5. Slurred or incoherent speech
(making disjointed or incomprehensible statements)
6. Gross observable incoordination
(stumbling, inability to walk tandem/straight line)
7. Emotions out of proportion to circumstances
(distraught, crying for no apparent reason)
8. Memory deficits
(exhibited by the athlete repeatedly asking the same question that has already been answered, or inability to memorize and recall 3 of 3 words or 3 of 3 objects in 5 minutes)
9. Any period of loss of consciousness
(paralytic coma, unresponsiveness to arousal)
